Introduction

The Handicapped in Australia: a Select Bibliography has been prepared by Dilette Polach and Geraldine Triffitt of the National Library's Community Affairs Information Service as part of the Library's contribution to the International Year of Disabled Persons, 1981.

The bibliography lists monographs, pamphlets, reports, theses, laws, parliamentary papers, conference proceedings, and articles on handicapped persons in Australia from the earliest time to 1980. A select list of Australian periodicals in the subject field is also provided. For the purpose of this bibliography the term 'handicapped' excludes handicaps of a psychiatric, social, or economic nature.

The compilers searched the following bibliographical sources:

- . Annual catalogue of Australian publications
- . Australian national bibliography (ANB)
- . Australian government publications (AGP)
- . Australian public affairs information service (AP AIS)
- . Ferguson's bibliography of Australia
- . Bibliography of Australian medicine; 1790-1900 / by Sir Edward Ford, Sydney, Sydney University Press, 1976
- . Women and health; a bibliography and guide / compiled by Louise Peterson, Canberra, Australian Government Publishing Service, 1977
- . Union list of higher degree theses in Australian libraries
- . Catalogue of the National Library of Australia
- . Catalogue of the Mitchell Library, State Library of New South Wales
- . Library catalogue of the Australian Council for Rehabilitation of Disabled
- . Current Australian serials, 9th edition
- . NLA Community Affairs Information Service data base.

A shelf check was also made of the National Library's holdings and some serial titles were scanned for substantial articles which might not have been included in the existing indexes.

The bibliography aims to achieve extensive coverage of the subject field; however, no claims are made for its comprehensiveness. The material on education, for example, does not include curriculum orientated items nor was material of a purely medical or scientific nature included. Only a few newspaper articles have been selected.

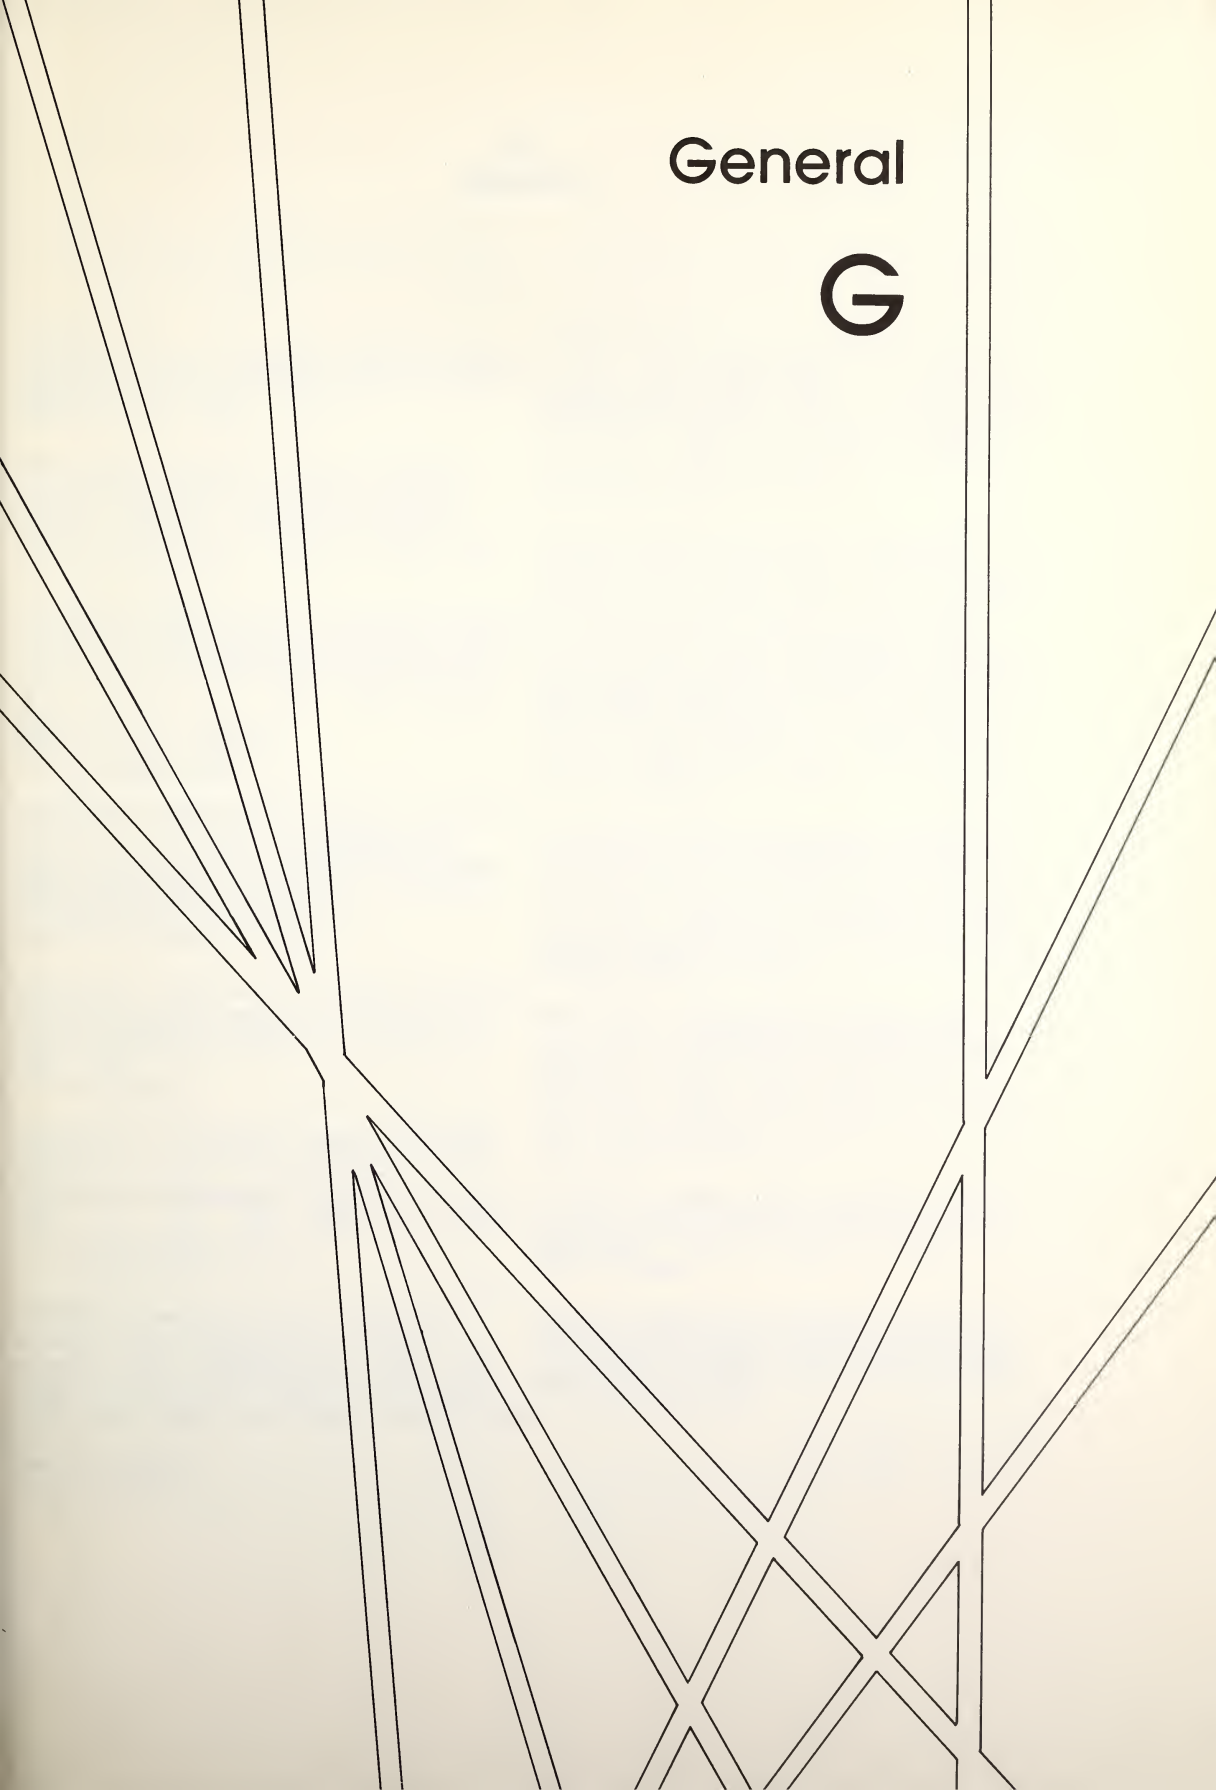

The entries are arranged primarily by disability in five broad sections, one general and four dealing with specific disabilities; each section is then subdivided by topic. Multiple entries have been used for some works which overlap two or more disabilities or topics. Every topic, however, may not appear in all of the sections. Where only one or two entries were identified on a particular topic they have been included in the "general" subdivision of the section. For example, while material will be found under the heading DEAFNESS, AURAL DISABILITY - FAMILY ASPECTS, the single item on the impact of blindness on family life has been entered under BLINDNESS, VISUAL DISABILITY - GENERAL.

Entries for statute law are arranged in a separate sequence by State or Territory. The periodicals, also arranged in a separate sequence, are listed alphabetically by title.

OPENLY in the city [motion picture] Adelaide, South Australian Film Corporation [production company]; Department of Education [sponsor] 1974. 26 min., col. presents two different approaches to the problem of educating mentally handicapped children. The first is based on the premise that the children need guidance in personality development as well as basic educational skills in order that they may gain an identity and thus grasp on their place in society. The second approach involves certain skills through structured instruction, with the belief that the individual will develop with mastery of the learning skills.
